“ Doris was a special friend. From third grade to graduation, we were friends. There were some funny things that happened along the way and some sadness. She smiled and laughed more times than she frowned.

She was an excellent nurse. She was the head nurse on the day my father died. She was with us until he passed. She was proud of her children and had every right to do so.

I read her post on Facebook one day this week that she had concern for Jimmy's health. That was the way Doris was--always thinking about others first.

She posted on Facebook that
