“ Missing you today more than usual.

“ May you rest in eternal peace my very dear friend. We had not see or been in contact for many years but when I did find you through Facebook friend of the day where Debbie was picked I was watching the news and WOW I immediately connected with her she and I did not know one another very well as I met her only a couple times but I did like her and I knew you had found your soul mate. You have given life to some fine children as I have been told and you were always a very honest, caring exceptional human being. You were always out doors finding some kind of animal in need and just an all around out doors man. My Mother loved you as a son and I as a brother. I am so sad that I did not get to hug that good looking neck one last time but I shall see you in time. God has His arms wrapped around you and has taken all your pain away. Love You Lee Lee

“ Uncle Jase, you are and were the only example I had to turn my life around, to know that what your past consisted of you could always change your future and live a life that was greater than one man could ask for. More than anything you were my friend, through everything, no matter what you supported everyone around you with your spirit even when you were in terrible pain. The fact that I can never hear your voice in the physical world again hurts, but those voices in my head, you are one of them, and I am proud of those voices helping to lead to me who I am today. And I will never forget the time you had me bring you a beer when you worked Landscaping with Mom and I shook it up before I left the house, and when I walked out to give it to you, you opened it pointed right at me. I Love you Uncle Jase, and I will always, you are now not only my friend, but my Angel Friend.

“ James you are my one true love, there will never be another, I loved you for richer & for poorer, sickness and health, we had our ups and downs, mainly ups, good times & bad times, but one thing was always true we always loved each other and were there for each other, you were my strength, and my heart, i loved you for 32 years and just because you have gone before me doesn't change anything, I will love you always and forever, I will miss you until we are together again in heaven with the Father....

“ My heart goes out to all of James' family. He will be greatly missed. James was one of the kindest people I've ever known. He was always ready to share with anyone in need - whether that meant feeding them, or giving words of encouragement. He was honest and never fake. I look forward to meet up with him in heaven....
