John William Jackson was born on Oct 30, 1935, to John Tramel Jackson and Therra Alice Hill Jackson in Falkner, MS. John was the second born, but the eldest son in a family of 13 siblings. John joined the National Guard while still in high school with many of his peers and traveled to Washington DC after graduation to work for the FBI. John read fingerprints for them. He made his way from there to Northern Illinois near Chicago. John worked for a few different companies there, one being with Sears Roebuck as a repairman. He found a love of photography and was able to build a successful career out of that professionally for many years. He eventually decided to put the camera's away and bought his own commercial truck. He drove over the road for the last several years of his career as an owner/operator. He took his beloved Corgi's with him everywhere he went.
